

Lovers Weep

by Justin Lacroix

I would only break your heart
I think it better if we never start
We'll come falling like the rain
Oh baby don't let us do this again
No matter how we part
In the end we only hold the stars
I would only break your heart
I would only break your heart.

Still you call with those eyes
And a love that defies
Draw me back into the fold
All ablaze, despite what is told

I would only break your heart
I think it better if we never start
We'll come falling like the rain
Oh baby don't let us do this again
No matter how we part
In the end we only hold the stars
I would only break your heart
I would only break your heart.

Yet we plunge, fumbling fools
Intertwine, hunger rules
Sinking deep, darkness sweeps
Silence chills, lovers weep

I would only break your heart
I think it better if we never start
We'll come falling like the rain
Oh baby, let us not start all over again
No matter how we part
In the end we only hold the stars
I would only break your heart
I would will break your heart.
